MEAN & MEDIAN PAY GAP

MEAN GENDER
PAY GAP 2024

PAY GAP 2024

The pay gap is primarily driven via a large number of skilled manufacturing and operational roles being held by men. This is consistent with demographics in the wider print, logistics distribution and manufacturing sector. We also have a number of shift workers which includes the requirement to work unsociable hours including long shifts and night shifts. We pay a premium rate for shifts considered to be unsociable, however we attract fewer female candidates to work these hours. The Gender pay report does not cover all companies within the Delta Group, this includes our Creative Agencies where we have a higher percentage of female employees within skilled roles. This report does cover the largest Group company and includes our main manufacturing facility.

Since the 2024 report, the mean gender gap has increased slightly, and the median has decreased slightly. As a group we are hiring & promoting more females in the senior and middle leadership roles. This had been achieved through development and succession planning leading to more female employees within management, supervisory and specialist/skilled roles. The 2025 gender pay report has also been influenced by the Group adopting flexible working into the organisation, which has led to attracting a diverse pool of candidates.

In 2022 the Delta Group introduced a Graduate Scheme in 2023, the Group has increased the number of Graduates on this scheme, we have also increased the number of Apprentices we have within the the organisation. The majority of these employees are in office-based roles within the lower and lower middle quartiles, and we would expect to see them further develop their careers and increase their salary in next year's report.

Mean gender pay gap 24%

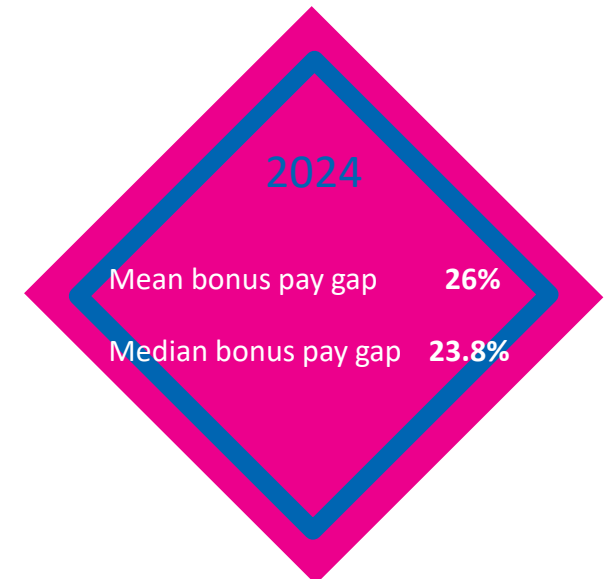

Median gender pay gap 24.4%

MEAN & MEDIAN BONUS PAY GAP

At The Delta Group, bonus payments are linked to financial and individual performance, for the reference group during the reporting period, a total of 54 employees received a bonus payment.

The bonus pay gap is driven by more employees in Operational roles being part of the bonus scheme. The bonus pay gap has decreased since 2024 however, this is due to more female employees within professional skilled roles being eligible for the bonus scheme.

GENDER PAY GAP REPORTING 2025

1 The Delta Group employ approximately 655 people across 7 trading companies within Great Britain & Ireland.

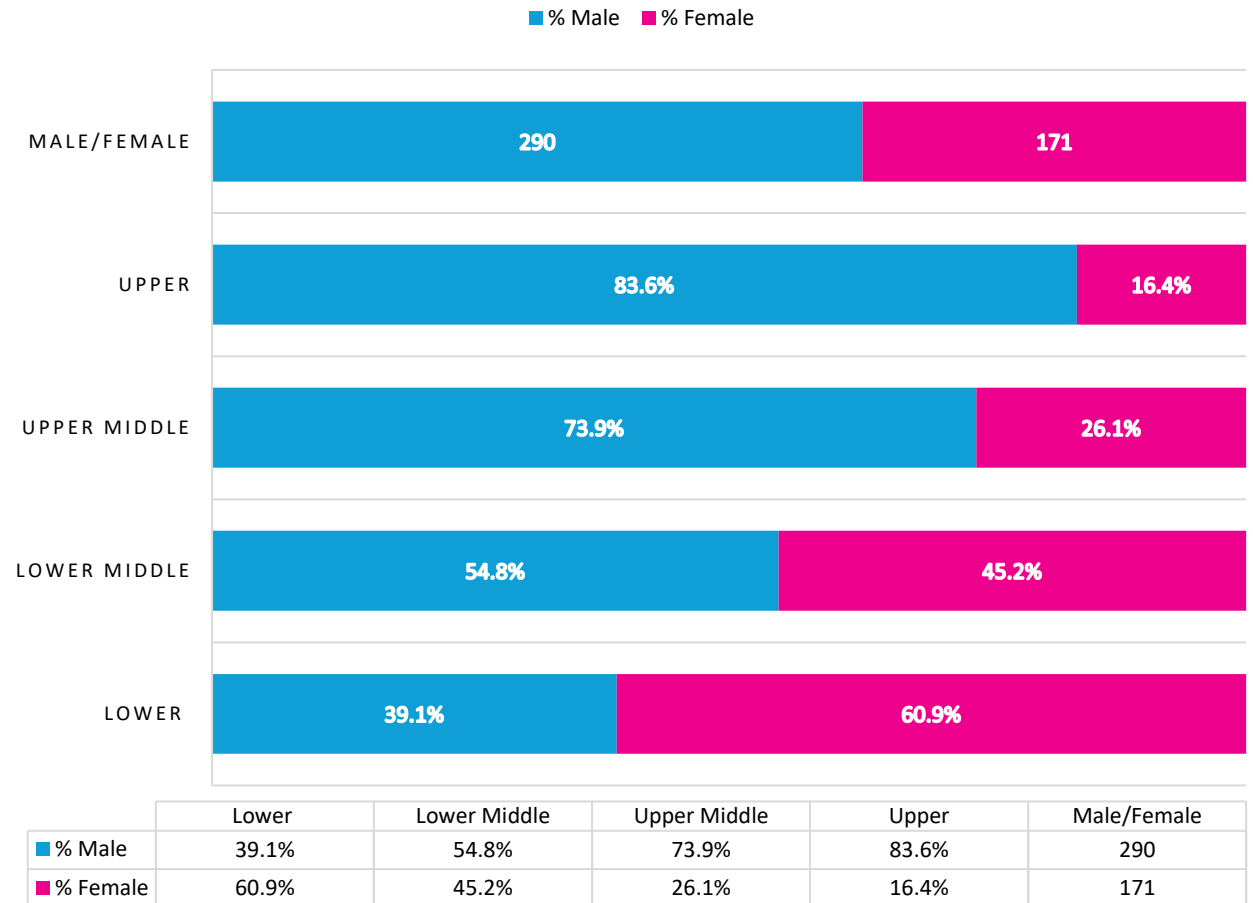

2 For the purpose of this report, Delta Display Ltd & Digital Viscom are the entites that qualify for the gender pay reporting.

3 These entities are primarily involved in the sales, production, manufacturing and distribution of point of sale and promotional marketing materials.
